

Brody Ream

September 29, 2018

It's always difficult to let the ones closest to you go, and Brody was no exception. He was a protector, a comfort, and a friend. He would lay with you if you were sick, and he would wait by the door if you were gone. He loved walks, car rides, and anything you were eating. Brody had more nicknames than we could count, but he will always be our good boy, no matter what you call him. We miss you, Pookies. The snow will never look the same without you.
