

Chestnut (Chestnutter Butter) Jordan

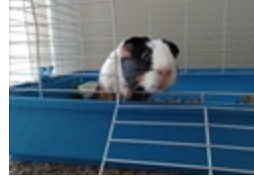

February 22, 2018 - November 20, 2025

In velvet cages, warm and bright, A tiny heart once beat with delight, Chestnut, sweet, with whiskers fine, A gentle soul, a love divine. Her fur as brown as autumn leaves, Her squeaks, a chorus that would ease, My heart, a refuge from the pain, A friend, a confidante, a love so plain. But fate, it seemed, had other plans, A sudden loss, a shattered band, Chestnut's tiny heart, it ceased to beat, Leaving emptiness, a hollow seat. Memories linger, a bittersweet refrain, Echoes of joy, a love that remains, In whispered sighs, her name I say, A farewell, a goodbye, to a love that's gone astray. Though gone, not forgotten, dear friend, Your memory stays, till the very end, In dreams, I'll see your gentle face, A cherished companion, a love that time won't erase.
Rest now, sweet Chestnut, may your soul be free, In fields of green, may you dance with glee, Your memory, a treasure, I'll hold tight, A love so pure, a guiding light.
