

Chloe Brown

January 26, 2019

Chloe was in my life for over twenty years and she was one of the very most special and dear friends I ever had. When my very first feline friend Syd, who holds his own extra special place of love in my heart, passed away in our home in 2008, Chloe climbed into my lap next to Syd and stayed with me as I cried and grieved for him. I cry and grieve for you now Chlo Bear, but I also rejoice that you are at peace and free of pain now. I know that we will see each other again and be happy in each other's love and companionship. I love you forever.
