I can't write this without starting to cry. You were our surprise. When we went to pick out a pup, we picked your brother. I liked you as you were the runt. Daddy at one point said we should get two of you. I was shocked. No one wanted you and you were the last one. So Tiffany gave us you for free. So both you and your brother Samson came home with us. You grew up Bigger than Samson. You were a big baby. Very needy. You weren't much of an outside dog but you were with your brother almost where he was. Sleeping together. Eating together. Walks together. If I wasn't with you, you would come find me. After your brother died 3 months ago you had us all for yourself. All the attention and more. We even let you up on the couch. We miss that now. The house is lonely, quiet. I'm thinking I need to feed you or hurry home. But you're not there. The bed is empty without you. You were such a good dog. A big baby and hated the rain.

I'm sure Samson was waiting for you. Claude too as the three of you were buddies. No more Pain! Having fun and snuggling with Samson again.

Our hearts are broken. But for now till we see you again.

We miss you, Samson, Claude, and Fred.
