

MOO MOO BALL Masterson

February 3, 2009 - April 16, 2022

I loved how Moo used to sunbathe all the time! I remember the night she was born, she was a breech baby and her other two siblings didn't make it. The vet brought her out in a dish towel and how they cheered that she made it safe into this world! As soon as they brought her out I was in love. A girl all white with black spots and how I thought she looked like a little cow! And that's when it hit me to name her Moo Moo. As she grew she went through a mine phase, she picked up any and everything and drug it into her bed to with it or play with it! She also was an avid hunter. She loved to run and chase squirrels, she even captured several! She always slept with her mother by her side with nose poking out from under the covers! She used to tell mommy it was time for bed she would come run and jump on me and then run back to the bedroom and on top of the bed and would repeat until I followed. I trained her to lay beside my leg close to the edge of the bed. She loved to cuddle and share the covers. If you sat on the couch with a blanket she would come and lay with you! As she grew older she often got scared of the thunderstorms and mommy made her a little safe haven for her to hide from the noise. I remember her first steps crawling out of her bed half blind trying to go potty on the pads outside her bed to crate training and how I felt so bad for leaving her in the cage for so long! All the car rides we went on she loved to look out the window or sit in Mommy's lap. She used to sit in the car seat and look out the window and smell the fresh air! She loved to take herself for a walk when mommy wasn't watching but hated to be walked on a leash. She was definitely a free spirit! I'll never forget the way her ears would perk up and her head would turn to the side when we mentioned "food", "outside", "go for a ride", "squirrel", any of her little trigger words. I swear she knew when we took pictures of her because she would always turn or look away. How many times I had to change her food because she was picky. She is Mommy's princess and I LOVE and MISS YOU! 13 years of the best girl ever. She was very brave and smart. You will forever be in my heart,

Love Mommy

“ I loved you through the years like any mother could.
I hold you dear now that your not near!
I wanted you to stay forever but I knew there would come a day that you would go away, And I'd be left alone with all the memories I own! I love you now as I have before, and always will forever more!
The day you came into my life was the best by far, and the journey made it worth it all. Even though I'm sad and alone I still wish for you to come home..
Wanna run and play or even sun bathe..?
I know now that you are at peace and will be up there waiting for mommy!
I love you Moo Moo Ball!
