

Venus Young

December 21, 2018

I was lucky enough to rescue Venus almost 9 years ago and from the day I brought her home she stole a piece of my heart. She was instantly my protector and always made sure I was safe. Venus was known for her expressive face and talkative ways. From throwing her blue alien in the air to opening the front door for a run (she was a master escape artist) she was always full of surprises and laughs. She was known for stealing all the toys in the house and for being the “fun police” when everyone else wanted to play. Venus didn’t give you a choice but to love her and she made it easy to do. She would nose her way into your lap and make you love her. She gave the greatest kisses and told the best stories. If she was in trouble she was sure to tell you how she felt and always wanted to have the last word.

If there was one thing I could wish, it’s that I had more time to love her and her crazy ways. I will always love my baby girl; my brown cow talkie talk but I know in my heart I will see you at the rainbow bridge. Fly high Venus you will be my angel to protect me from heaven!
